

Professor Geu-Ru Hong, MD, PhD
Professor, Division of Cardiology, Department of Internal Medicine
Yonsei University, College of Medicine
Seoul, Korea

Dr Geu-Ru Hong is a Professor at the division of Cardiology of Yonsei University, College of Medicine in Seoul, Korea.

Dr Hong is a graduate of Yeungnam University Medical School Daegu, Korea. He trained in internal medicine at the Yeungnam University Medical Center. He finished cardiology fellowship at the Yeungnam University Medical Center and Yonsei University Severance Hospital, Seoul, Korea. He obtained a Ph.D, in Doctor of Medicine (Cardiovascular Medicine) from Yeungnam University in 2002.

Dr Hong has a sub-speciality board certification in cardiology. He was a post-doctoral as a researcher in Ohio State University, Columbus, in the USA. He was a clinical research fellow at the University of California, Irvine, CA, in the USA.

Perviously, Dr Hong was appointed the Associate Professor of Medicine at the Yeungnam University at Daegu from 2010-2012. Since 2012, he is the Professor at the Yonsei University.

Dr Hong's practice specializes in the care of cardiomyopathy, valvular heart disease and structural heart disease . Dr Hong's interests also include cardiac imaging including echocardiography, cardiac CT and MRI. Dr Hong is board certified in internal medicine, cardiology and echocardiography.

His research was focused on echocardiography and cardiac imaging include contrast echo, 3D Echo, interventional imaging for structural heart disease and valvular heart disease.

Currently, Dr Hong serves as the secretary of general of Korean Society of Cardiology (KSC), and Asian Pacific Association of Echocardiography. And also Scientific chair of Korean Society of Echocardiography (KSE) and president of Education & Research Center for Rare & Structural Heart Disease (ERCRC) and the program director of the Echo360 symposium.